SEEN, HEARD AND TOLD
BY THE EDITOR

We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard.—Acts 4:20.

We announced last week that we were going to have a mighty short paper this weke, but, when the time came, we found out that we just could not cut down that deep, leaving out such things as Fed Robinson, Gore Springs, Sunday School Lesson and Far of The Week, so we are getting out a regular edition and sweating like fire doing it.

Then, too, it would have looked bad for us to DELIBERATELY get out a sorry paper on our anniversary for this, indeed is an anniversary. This is Volume 18, No. 1 and that should mean something to our many charter members, a good many of whom have already taken the hint. Then, too, the weather is just too hot to fish anyway, and that was what we intended to do this week instead of working.

It used to be that, when one saw a lotta mules being accumulated one expected a war right off. Guy Branscome has his pastures full of plug mules. Wonder if that is again the sign of war right off, or is he fixing to make a big shipment to some cat food factory. That's about all those faithful animals are used for now - cat food.

Bob Sartwell did not get a preview of the Farm of the Week ahead of time this week, as he usually does, so we will have to struggle on in darkness, as we usually do until the owner comes and identifies the picture.

I went down 'home' to the vets hospital in Jackson on the City of New Orleans Sunday night and had fine company on the train as far as Jackson, in the person of Walter Dubard, Jr. I gained a fine impression of this young fellow whose home is in Greenwood, and enjoyed my trip much more because we were together.

I stayed there until Tuesday morning, then came home after being checked up pretty good and, while there, I had a grand time, monkeying around and visiting old friends there.

The very first one I saw was Willie Abels who seems to have become permenantly attached to Ward 39. He is a dipper of pure-d Garrett snuff, nr sweet snuff, and he was kind enough to give me a dip. I told him that, after lazing around down there so long, he would not be worth a damn when he got back home, but he said he was not worth a damn when he was AT home anyway.

Who remembers those twin redheaded gals of Old Man Buck Wright here in Grenada, one named Pauline, the other Helene. Pauline who serves at the hospital as a volunteer Red Cross helper, showed up by my bed Monday. She saw a Grenada paper on my bed. It, of course, just happened to be a GCW. That caught her eye right off the bat and she and I reminisced no end. I found out that she had a pretty good husband who works for the State Tax Commission and that her twin sister in Chicago also had a pretty fair husband. Both of the twins, still neat trim and pretty seemed to be doing all right. An older sister, Mary Bell, now Mrs. Beachman, lives in Jackson, while their brother, Ed, lives in Biloxi. All of them are cousins of Wm Wright of Grenada.

Coleman Powell, who was raised out there at Pearidge is in Ward 39, but I did not talk to him as he seemed pretty bad off.

They said I was in pretty fair physical shape, I am glad to say. You see I have been taking Dr. Avent's medicine, 'more fishing', and Mrs. Jake Whitaker's remedy for arthritis - codliver oil and orange juice.

Ellett Lawrence of Greenwood wrote me recently about Grenada's industrial development and its prospects for greater development. As a present-day citizen of Greenwood he was a bit jealous, but, as a native son of Grenada, he was mighty proud of Grenada's apparent progress. He was particularly proud that Grenada had landed McQuay Mfg. Co. and I am too because I think our deal with them was a good bet.

I enjoyed a short trip about the perimeter of Grenada with Supervisor Ben Sanders Tuesday afternoon and I was surprised and delighted to see what a fine job Ben, with his own crew, had done blacktopping 'old 51' from the town's edge to Longstreet's Crossing, also to see some fine work he had been doing in Sandersville, the fahterless section immediately south of the city limits. We rode on the state-aid road out toward the Gold Coast, about which John Chambley has an ad in the paper. Frankly, I think Ben is doing a good job, though I did not vote for him.

Industrial Bond Issue Carried Overwhelmingly Saturday

At the bond issue election held in Beat One Saturday, voters turned out in fine fashion and authorized the million dollar plus bond issue almost unanimously, and this election gives the Grenada County supervisors legal authority to issue $1,075,000 in bonds, covering property in Beat 1, and set up the McQuay Manufacturing Company in the business of making air conditioning equipment, under the BAWI law of this state.

The Box Score

Ward 2, Grenada	264	4
Ward 3, Grenada	277	9
Ward 4, Grenada	291	4

The total number of qualified voters of Beat One is 2,000.

Held At Choctaw Lake 4-H Training Center July 19—22
Grenada County Boy Gives Report on Conservation Camp

(By Jim Quinn)

I have just returned from the Mississippi Conservation Camp at 4-H Training Center, Choctaw Lake, and I should like, first of all, to thank the Kiwanis Club for making it possible for me to go as a representative from Grenada County 4-H Club. I found it to be a nicely operated and well-maintained camp.

As you probably know, this Conservation Camp is sponsored by the Federal Cartridge Company and Mississippi Agricultural Extension Service.

The various camp activities consisted of soft ball, table tennis, horseshoe pitching, washers, shuffleboard, volley ball and last but not least, swimming.

We arrived at camp just after noon Monday, July 19 and broke camp Thursday afternoon, July 22. Had I had my way, it would have lasted a month or, at least until I got home-sick.

During those few days we had some wonderful and well-trained teachers and counselors: C. R. Ashford taugh Soil Conservation; J. T. Copeland, Agricultural Engineering; A. G. Bennett, Entomology; Dr. I. E. Miles, Agronomy; J. S. Therrell, Wild life; Ralph Robertson, Forestry; M. M. Bedenbaugh (Director of Youth Activities) Mississippi Game and Fish Commission; Miles Chafee, Camp Director; Mrs. Arnold Hunt, Camp Manager; Thomas Shows, Life Guard and Athletic Director. The camp counselors were Edna Stanley, Shirley Temple (not the real one but looks almost like her) and Chester McLemore.

The 4-H Conservation Camp meant much to me as a 4-H Club member. I learned a great deal about how to earn a living easier and more economically. Boys and girls everywhere are learning that conservation is essential to good living. They especially stressed trees, soil and water as related to conservation. I wish every club boy and girl could have had the opportunity to listen to these lectures and discussions. I believe the natoin as a whole would be better off if only a part of those listening did what they were taught. That was the primary purpose in setting up conservation camps - 'to teach others the importance of conservation.'

We were taught how to conserve and be happier, healthier, more prosperous - all designed for better living. Conservation saves for the following generation and the next and next to come. So - 'don't be a hog and try to 'trar up the earth, cut all the trees, kill all the birds and animals or catch all the fish' - think of the other fellow!

Again I want to thank the Kiwanis Club. I did enjoy every minute of the camp and shall strive to be a most deserving club member.

Town Talk

BY FED ROBINSON

Just to prove one does miss a lot of the world's activities if they live over here in Arkansas and out of reach of the south's finest paper - The Press Scimitar of Memphis, we didn't know until recently that Robert 'Ripley' famous columnist, has moved his residence from New York to Madrid, Spain in order to beat the noisy traffic of our largest city. Well, Bob we wish we could have gone along with you to a quiet retreat for we too are fed up on the big scramble for survival here among the demoniac rush of life. On a busy highway today we came upon several cars being driven at a reasonable speed - a speed which would enable one to relax and enjoy the scenes of a country side, but in each case these slow drivers had blocked up at least a dozen cars behind them who were blowing horns and flinging fists and fury at the slow-poke as they tried to pass. We noticed one station wagon that passed everybody - on curves and over hills, but to overtake him a little later parked in front of a beer store taking on his drink without any hurry at all. There's a lot of difference in smartness and smart-alecky, and the toll of over 100 fatal accidents every day can hardly be the result of smartness. Whats your hurry Bub?

Have always heard said we must have a balance between optimistic people and pessimistic people because only the optimistic have the necessary enthusiasm to sell things and the pessimistic have the money to buy them. For about 40 years I have worked on the side of the optimist because I wanted to be, and was trying to be a salesman, and habits can be formed, but actually - and this is my secret - I am really a confirmed pessimist and have found it forever disatsteful to pretend enthusiasm and optimism when in reality I am not of that disposition at all. But a job is a job, and salesmen or actors can train themselves into an extrovert personality for benefit of customers but many of them like myself revert back to the introvert-type after the show or after the sale is made. Since so many of us do pretend, you might remember that hte smiling hand-shaking fellow you met today is probably a confirmed grouch when he's home and out of the spotlight of the customers. There's another kind of fellow abroad in the land known as a 'rugged individualist' and this one will say no to almost every thing you are in favor of. He's the guy who said he's rather be right than be president. It isn't that he is so sold on being right exactly, but what he really means when he says 'its a matter of principle' with him, he is telling you of his secret pride of being different. This one who insists on 'standing on his rights' wouldn't hesitate at all of standing on your neck. He's the rugged individualist who appears on every committee and on every board of control - in business, in church and everywhere you run into him and he is always voting against the majority and he's a-going to take it up with the higher powers unless he can brow-beat the others into agreeing with him. Well, he's certainly handicapped as a peacemaker because you've got to give and take and play on the team if you're going t omake your influence count for the good of all whether you are on the Board of Deacons or a United States Ambassador. These 'R. I's' never make successful salesmen. A successful salesman will let the prospect have his fun with an irrevalent opinion nad he will even compliment the prospect or buyer for his viewpoint, but then the salesman will say 'Yes, I can see how you might have that opinion, but suppose we look at the matter this way . . .' and before Mr. P realizes it he is looking at the whole thing with a changed point of view. Diplomacy? Yes, guess thats a good name for it - but in our lingo we call it salesmanship and whatever its called its something this country needs a lot of and

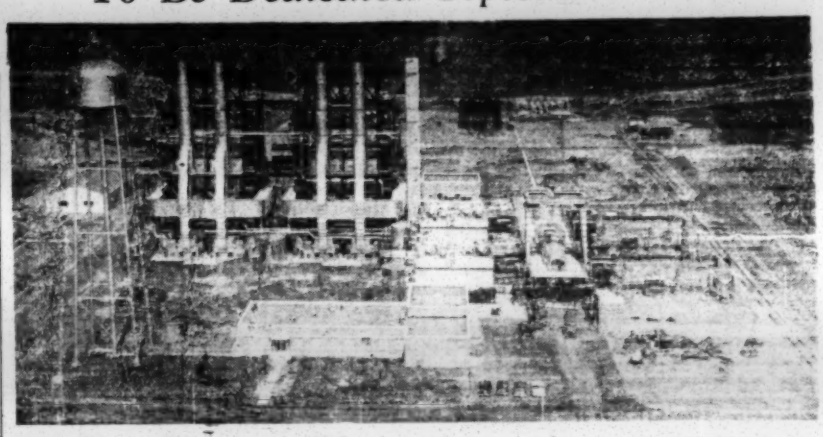
To Be Dedicated September 2nd



Delta Steam Electric Station Program Set

The Delta Steam Electric Station, Mississippi Power & Light Company's third and largest generating plant, located near Cleveland, Miss., is scheduled to be formally dedicated September 2, according to an announcement by Rex I. Brown, President of the Company.

The huge 210,000 kilowatt generating station, which began operation in the Fall of 1953, was more than seven years in planning, engineering and construction. It is considered to be the largest industrial investment ever made in the state.

Named as one of the seven engineering wonders of the Mid-South, the plant features a mile-square lake and a physical structure equivalent to a seven story building.

Mr. Brown, in making the announcement, extended a cordial invitation to the public to attend the dedication ceremonies and tour the generating plant.

"Our Company is indeed proud of this plant," Mr. Brown said, "not only because it supplements existing modern plants and provides us an abundant supply of surplus power for the future industrial and agricultural development of our state, but because it is also an example of what can be accomplished under our economic system of free enterprise."

Featured on the program will be an address by Philip D. Reed, Chairman of the Board of General Electric Company, and a talk by Governor Hugh White.

Preceding the formal dedication program there will be a parade beginning at 10:00 o'clock Thursday morning in downtown Cleveland, followed by a barbecue luncheon on the site of the plant for all visitors.

At the conclusion of the dedication program the public will be invited on a tour of the plant to see first hand how electricity is made.

Assisting the power company officials in planning the program is a committee composed of public officials and civic leaders from throughout the Delta area.

Utility and industry leaders from over the nation as well as state, county and local dignitaries will be present for the event.

Final tests being made on a new long distance switchboard. This is one of a type which has helped reduce the average speed of completing long-distance calls in Mississippi from 353 seconds in 1945 to 140 seconds today.

"Mississippi's Growth is a Challenge"

Mississippi is growing fast in all ways, economically, industrially and agriculturally. This growth has brought an unprecedented demand for telephone service which has been a challenge to Southern Bell.

We have met this challenge with more telephone growth in the past 8 years than during the first 64 years in Mississippi. We have filled 96 percent of all the applications for new telephones received since January 1, 1946 — more than doubling the total number of customers in the state and more than quadrupling our rural telephone subscribers.

Since 1945, this expansion has cost over 82 million dollars of investment money. To provide further needed expansion, we must secure still more money from investors. To get people to furnish this money we must make a fair profit on money invested in telephone property.

New dial equipment in many new central offices has been placed in service throughout the State.

Official Details Of Girl Scout Camp at Grenada Lake

Col Thomas B Simpson, District Engineer, Vicksburg Dist. CE., has announced that the United States recently leased to the Girl Scout Campers of Mississippi, Inc., approximately 178.0 acres of land located on the Cedar Point Area, Grenada Reservoir for construction of an organized camp for outdoor recreational activities.

According to Mr. John C. Lake, President of the Girl Scout Campers of Miss., the purpose of the Girl Scout Camp is to promote Girl Scouting throughout the entire State of Mississippi. The charter for the corporation has already been granted and now consists of 12 counties in the Grenada Reservoir region. Mr. Lake emphasizes that the membership is open to all other counties in Mississippi and strongly urged their participation since the project is for the entire state. The corporation is governed by the Board of Directors consisting of one director from each participating county so that all counties will have equal rating power.

Detailed plans have laready been approved to make this one of the finest camps in the United States. The final development of these plans will, of course, depend on the number of participating counties since it obviously will require considerable funds. A gravel roadway has already been cut through the area. This was donated by Boyd Construction Company and Grenada County Board of Supervisors. The supervisors of several other participating counties have promised their support in graveling of additional roads leading to various development points.

Arrangements have already been made for the immediate drilling of a deep well. The well will be approximately 400 feet deep and amply supply good pure water for 150 campers or more at one time.

The camp will be operated under supervison in keeping with the Girl Scout Camper's regulations.

In order to start camping immediately, five approved Girl Scout tents have already been purchased. Clearing and under-limbing on the land is now underway in certain areas to provide facilities during August of this year to accomodate units for 35 girls at one time. These tents are only of a temporary nature. The eventual program will provide permanent unit houses and camper's quatrers and, in addition, there will be a large Administration Building which will accomodate 150 or more girls in the dining hall, recreation centre etc.

—Forestry News—

(By Gerald Stevens)

Forest fires have cost Grenada County less acres in the past fiscal year (1953-54) than any year since the county came under fire protection in 1935, it was reported today by Area Forester Gerald Stevens.

Only 169 fires were recorded in Grenada County. Mr. Stevens further reported that the last record was set in the fiscal year of 1960-61 when 102 fires burned 2,221 acres. Grenada County suffered most in the fiscal year of 1952-53 when 186 fires burned 16,964 acres.

This vast improvement over the past years was due to better and more efficient equipment, competent fire crews, and the splendid cooperation of the landowners and the general public of Grenada County, explained Mr. Stevens.

It is the hope of Mr. Stevens and the fire crews that, with the continued cooperation of the people of Grenada County, they will be able to better the record set in this past year.

Quota Penalty Due On Excess Cotton

Cotton growers with 'excess acres' - that is, a cotton acreage larger than their acreage allotment - are warned by Ben W. McElwrath, chairman of the agricultural stabilization and conservation committee, that they will be subject to a marketing quota penalty of 17.5 cents for each pound of excess upland cotton. Farmers are currently being notified of the measured acres of cotton on their farms.

Marketing cards, which certify that the cotton produced from a farm is free of marketing quota penalties, will not be issued for farms with 'excess acres' until the marketing quota penalty has been paid. The penalty may be paid at the county ASC office in the county in which the cotton was produced.

Unless the marketing quota penalty has already been paid on excess cotton, buyers will deduct a penalty of 17.5 cents for each pound of upland cotton marketed.

Mr. McElwrath emphasized that growers whose cotton acreage is within their acreage allotments are eligible for marketing cards and can market penalty-free all the cotton produced in 1954 if it is properly identified. Growers who are eligible for marketing cards will be notified when the cards are ready and where

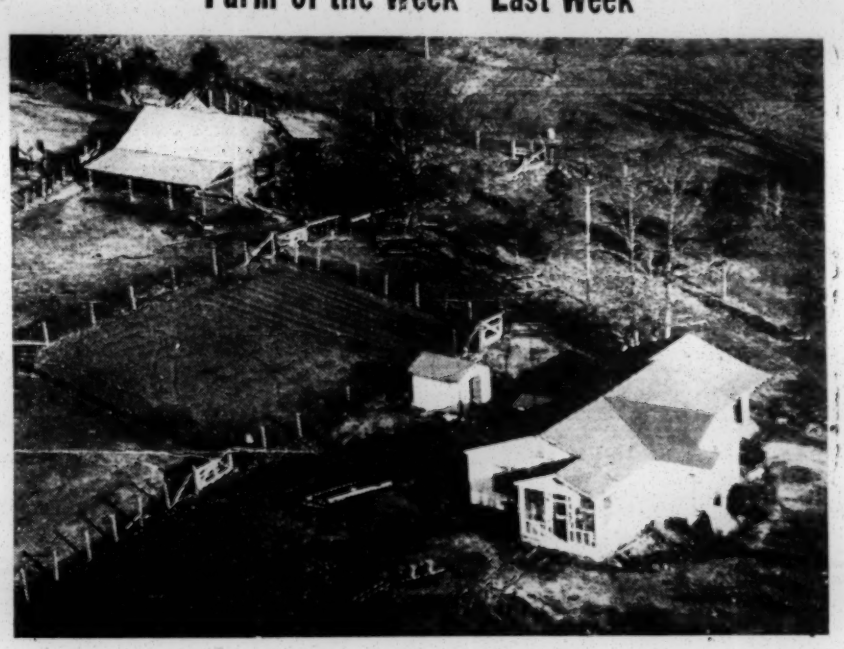
"Farm of the Week" Last Week



This Series sponsored by Jitney-Jungle of Grenada

Hubert F. Wyatt owns the farm whose headquarters are pictured above. The property consisting of 212 acres, is located about 6 miles north of Grenada on 51 Highway and was bought about 7 years ago from Gordon Wilson who bought it from Tom King.

Mr. Wyatt and his wife, Ruby, who were married in 1946 have one daughter, Jimmie Aline Wyatt, nearly 3 years old.

Mr. Wyatt belongs to the Methodist Church and the VFW and is a bird and rabbit hunter.

He engages in general farming and not only has cotton, corn, potatoes and truck crops but goes in for cattle, both white-face and Jersey but his favorite are those white-face cattle.

He uses both mules and tractors in cultivation and has one tenant, but hires a lot of day labor.

He says, about soil conservation: 'is one of the best practices any farmer can deal with.'

He visualizes as future projects: more acreage, more registered cattle and greater attention to reforestration.

Mississippi grown and finished prime beef carcasses inspected by Graham Hales, County Agent, Jackson, Miss. is proof of profits from improved pastures. These carcasses from Hinds County steers were finished on grain, but the profits were made on pasture. The fastest gains and the most profitable gains put on beef animals here in the south according to L. H. Stubblefield, Agri. Agt. Illinois Central Railroad, are from improved patures. Grain feeding a balanced ration can step the animal up in grade, but the profits goes to that shrewd practical farmer who invests in pasture improvement instead of feed bunks, labor and bought feed. Pastures fertilized according to need, home produced hay and silage, other farm produced roughages are the ways up to livestock profits as beef, mutton, pork or milk.

Scripture: Acts 2:46-47; Colossians 3:12-17; Hebrews 10:23-25. Devotional Reading: Psalm 122.

Why Worship?

Lesson for August 1, 1954

AN AMATEUR gardener once wanted to raise some corn. In his little plot he did not have much room. He looked in his book and it said there that corn hills should be three feet apart, so he decided there was only room for one hill, as he wanted to plant other things too. So he planted his one hill of corn. But of course he never found any ears on his cornstalks. He did not know that one stalk of corn will not "make" by itself. Now human beings are like that, and especially Christians. Corn standing off by itself never is real corn, and a Christian off by himself is not a complete Christian. There are religions which suppose that a person can please God best if he becomes a hermit and carries on, so to speak, a single-track conversation between himself and God. But the Christian religion, at its best, knows better. Christians cannot become what they ought to be without the companionship and help of other Christians. Christianity without fellowship would not be Christianity.

Dr. Foreman

A Shared Faith

Consider one very important form of fellowship: Worship, — that is, public worship, in church on Sundays or otherwise. Why do we worship together? Wouldn't it be just as good if each of us worshipped alone? Private worship is necessary too, to be sure. "Enter into thy closet and shut thy door" is still Christ's directive. But Christ himself joined regularly in pubic worship even though in his day that was pretty formal. One of the reasons for public worship is that it is a united witness, a testimony of faith. Many churches repeat the Apostle's Creed on Sunday mornings. But even when they do not, public worship is the expression of a faith which can be shared, and is shared. When the communists took over the Chinese government, they did not attack the churches directly. What they did was to appoint official meetings, and require every one's attendance, at the hours on Sunday usually set for church services. They knew very well that if you can keep Christians from worshipping together you keep them from witnessing to their faith, and you are helping that faith to wither away. When you go to church on Sunday, you are not just sitting there in a pew listening. You are bearing witness to your faith in Christ, in the most public way; and others are helped by your being there just as you are helped by their being there.

Better Worship, Better Living

How would you "improve" the worship in your church? By having a better choir? By getting more people out? By having more eloquent sermons? By making the sanctuary more beautiful? All these things could help, but they might one and all miss the main point. The vital question is: What effect does this worship have on the lives of those who take part in it? If a change in the manner of worship does not make for better living on the part of worshippers, then it is not a change for the better. Real worship will so bring us as a group into the presence of God that we are bound to be better men and women. Public worship ought to make us conscious of our sinfulness and our need of God; to make us aware of God's forgiving love in Christ our Saviour; to arouse in us a desire to be more like the Master; to make us stop and think about our lives and what is wrong and what is right with them; to stir us to be grateful to God for his blessings; to make us bolder to approach the "throne of grace;" to sharpen our consciences and make us see more clearly what God will have us do; to strengthen our courage to do in God's strength what he has for us to do.

Fellowship

One of the greatest benefits from public worship is precisely Christian fellowship. We can have fellowship in many ways, at a fish-fry or in a Sunday school class or a church painting party. In worshipping together, however, we can find fellowship at its highest level. For in worship we are reminded of our common humanity, our common sinfulness, the need of God which all of us share.

High School Graduates Offered Chance To Further Education

Young men and women who are high school graduates are being offered an excellent chance to further their education by the United States Army, according to SFC Rollin M. Kuebler, local Army Recruiter.
